I've noticed how people today are often overwhelmed by busy schedules, workloads, and stress. This aroused my curiosity about how such pressures affect the brain and behavior, leading me to explore Neuropsychology. After completing 12th grade in 2024, I focused on learning about the brain's role in stress management, decision-making, and cognitive function. Through reading articles, and watching videos. I deepened my understanding of how stress impacts mental well-being. This experience sparked a strong interest in pursuing a Bachelor's in Psychology, from the USA with international exposure. I hope to contribute to understanding how stress affects brain function and help people manage these challenges in today's fast-paced world.
