I've always been fascinated by how technology can change physical objects, but seeing it up close in my father's automobile business was a completely new experience. Watching how digital designs could transform vehicles sparked my interest in the technology behind it all. As I spent more time in the business, I was amazed at how graphic software, powered by algorithms and code, could create such detailed and accurate designs. I learned how data processing and digital tools were key to making these designs come to life and applying them smoothly to vehicles. This experience made me realize how technology can revolutionize creative industries, especially how software can completely change the way we approach design. This sparked my interest in computer science, and I started exploring areas like software development, automation, and machine learning. accordingly, I applied for the present 2025 intake.
